Supreme Allied Commander Transformation (SACT) General Jean-Paul Paloméros speaks to Hampton Roads community leaders during a reception at Headquarters SACT in Norfolk, Virginia, February 12th, 2013. General Paloméros hosted the reception to honor local, civic, political and business leaders to show his appreciation for the hospitality shown by Hampton Roads citizens. ACT has 750 active duty military and civilian staff members from most of the NATO countries. Those, along with nearly 2,000 family members, now call Hampton Roads home.

SACT leads NATO's military Transformation and development of capabilities to address defence and security challenges by proactively providing future military assessments, perspectives and advice.
