On the occasion of a combined Remembrance Day Service that was organized by the U.K and Canadian National Liaison Representatives on Sunday, 11 November 2012 at St. Mary's Cemetery in Norfolk, a gathering of members from the Canadian and British military community, both uniformed and civilian, spouses and children, commemorated the contribution and sacrifice of British, Canadian and other Commonwealth military and civilian servicemen and women in the two World Wars and the later conflicts.

The service, which featured the contribution of Canadian chaplain, Captain Rory MacDonald and of a bugler, United States Marine Corps (Retired) Lieutenant Colonel Jeff Cristman was followed by a well-attended lunch at the Clubhouse of the Sewells Point Golf Course.
