

Howarth on the UK Commitment to NATO ACT - ACT

Written by U.S. Army Major Robin Ochoa
Thursday, 28 June 2012 17:20

To show the United Kingdom's continued support for Allied Command Transformation's (ACT) role in NATO Defence Planning, Smart Defence, and Allied Command Transformation mission, Mr. Gerald Howarth, the British Minister for International Security Strategy paid a visit to NATO ACT on Monday, 25 June to provide feedback on the UK's positive impression of the outcome for the 2012 Chicago Summit.

While visiting NATO ACT, Howarth had the opportunity to meet with General Stéphane Abrial, Supreme Allied Commander Transformation to discuss areas where the UK could offer experience in the mission of ACT and the role the headquarters plays in NATO Defence Planning and Smart Defence.

Howarth on the UK Commitment to NATO ACT - ACT

Written by U.S. Army Major Robin Ochoa
Thursday, 28 June 2012 17:20

Secretary of Defense Robert M. Gates (left) and British Defense Secretary William Hague (right) shake hands during a meeting at the NATO Summit in Lisbon, Portugal, on June 20, 2012. (U.S. Department of Defense)