1. Annex-I of RFIP document states “key requirements” include both “remote reconnaissance” and “remote neutralization”. Should these criteria be understood that HQ SACT is interested in devices and technologies which can remotely scan the suspected territory and neutralize the targets detected at the same time and/or in one device?	1. In identifying the criteria of "remote reconnaissance" and "remote neutralization." While the RFIP does indeed include these as key requirements, please note that solutions need not necessarily address both aspects simultaneously within a single device. The Innovation Challenge welcomes proposals that address any subset of the key requirements, and it is entirely acceptable for a solution to focus solely on either remote reconnaissance or remote neutralization. In fact, solutions may consist of separate devices or systems dedicated to each function. Your understanding and interpretation align with our intent, and we encourage submissions that reflect diverse approaches to addressing the demining challenge.
